Your Comments: Our rivers and streams should never become dumps for toxic wastes. The Willamette River is the crown jewel of Portland. Cleaning the river to the point that fish are edible regardless of where in they are caught and holding the polluters responsible for the cleanup are measures that must be taken. If done only halfway, the problem will arise again in a few years. Polluters must be held responsible for their own wastes. How is it any different than making home owners responsible and not allowing garbage to be dumped in the street?
